LETTER FROM GREENFIELD.

Young Man Killed by a School From a correspondent at Greenfield we gain the following particulars of the accidental killing of a young man briefly reported in the

The young man who was killed was named Gant, and was the son of a widow residing in that district, and was about nineteen years of age. It appears that he was making a display in the school room of what the teacher supposed to be a pistol; and he was ordered, just efore noon, to take the weapon home with him at night and leave it there, or stay there himself. At noon he said to his comrades, in hearing of the teacher, that he would do neither; that he would come to school, and bring the weapon with him. The teacher, feeling that he must defend his authority, or lose the control of his school told him to shut his mouth or he would knock him down, at the same time picking up the poker and advancing toward Gant. Gant clutched a heavy billet of wood and dared Dunn to advance; which he did, and wrested the billet of wood from Gant, letting it fall upon the floor, and as Gant was turning to retreat, (for what purpose is not known,) Dunn struck him over the head with the poker, a single blow, thinking to knock him down, but it only felled him to his knees. Dunn, seeing that he had stunned him, laid aside the poker and told him to obey or leave. Gant took his books, walked home, one and a half miles; and, not telling the circumstance to his people, they supposed that he had a chill, and was paying no special attention to the patient, until the return of the school children made known the cause of his aili-

They told him they came to arrest him for assault and battery, upon which he seemed surprised, asking if Gant was much hurt. He returned with the officers to tewn, where he was first acquainted with the death of Gant. The following items appear in the report of Oliver Ames, President: We have spent our ing the year upon snow sheds and snow fences over $300,000. We have now over five miles of snow sheds, and nearly fifty miles of snow fences, in addition to a large amount of snow fences put up last year. The experiment thus far this winter shows that our road can be run without much hindrance or obstruction from snow. The snows of the present winter have been the same as those of last, and we have been in but one instance obstructed over twenty-four hours. Our Superintendent is confident that we can keep our road as free from snow as the roads of New England and New York. The earnings of the road for the months reported since it was first opened, amount to $6,300,000. We anticipate that the gross earnings for the ensuing year will reach $12.000,000, and shall not be surprised should they largely exceed it. The Georgia question will probably up in the Senate as soon as the Fundin up in the Senate as soon as the Funding Bill is out of the way, as the Republicans, however they disagree among themselves as to the terms, are all anxious to have the State admitted at an early day, so that the ratification of the Fifteenth Amendment can be proclaimed. It shows a steady increase of collections, by Commissioner Delano, upon the principal articles, sixteen in all. On spirits, for example, the receipts for the year ending June 30, 1869, were over forty-five millions. This was regularly increased until the showing of receipts for the year ending 31st of January, 1870, was over fifty millions. Tobacco shows over twenty-three millions for the year ending in June, while the year ending with last January shows over twenty-nine millions. Receipts from income, including salaries, for

The Battle of the Wall Street Beasts

-A Billiard Match. From the Cincinnati Gazette's Special of this morn

The excitement on Wall street to-day was greater than at any time since September 24th. The transactions yesterday were eighty-six millions, and those of to-day about fifteen millions above yesterday's. The fluctuations were very rapid, sometimes two or three in one minute, and several times there were differences of one quarter per cent, in sales in ferences of one quarter per cent. in sales in different parts of the room. There were occasional lulls in the battle while waitoccasional lulls in the battle while waiting for news from Washington, which was the main dependence of both parties. The galleries were crowded long before ten o'clock, and there was a great crowd out watching the movements of the indicator. Outsiders resorted to the old trick of betting upon the indicator, and many hundreds of dollars changed hands in this way. Several carriages containing ladies were in the street, and two or three ladies endeavored to gain admission to the Gold dies were in the street, and two or three ladies endeavored to gain admission to the Gold Room. After the regular close of business there were many outside transactions; and it is estimated that three or four millions were bought and sold at the Curbstone Board. A very large short interest has been created, and the loss of the leading houses have already reached heavy figures. The general impression is that the bears have had the worst of to-day's fight. They were confident before business began that they would force gold to 109, and many of them made bets that it would touch that figure before night. The bulls are more hopeful than they were yesterday, and are talking confidently, though they

He said that he was ready, and asked her to hand him the revolver which he habitually kept under his pillow, as he wished to load the empty barrel. Mrs. Hobbs procured the pistol and a box of cartridges, which she handed him, and then stepped into the bedchamber to arrange the pillows and covering. Scarcely had she left the room when she heard the pistol discharged. Returning instantly chamber to arrange the pillows and covering. Scarcely had she left the room when she heard the pistod discharged. Returning instantly, she was horrified to see her husband kneeling on the sofa, his head bowed on his breast, and blood streaming from his right eye.

The servant girl was called and sent for assistance, while Mrs. Hobbs, shocked and terrified beyond measure, did what she could for her wounded husband. In a few moments Mr. E. Decker, and Mr. E. S. Isom, who lived near by, hastened to render all the aid in their power, and shortly after Dr. J. C. Saunders came, but Mr. Hobbs was fatally wounded, and expired in a quarter of an hour after he had been shot.

Dr. Sanders testified that the ball from the pistol had entered the pupil of the eve and passed through the brain. As the cyclid was not even marked by the ball, it was certain that the eye was open when the pistol was discharged, and as the face was not at all blackened with powder, the revolver must have been held some distance from the face. These facts being taken together, convinced the jury that the act was not intentional, and a verdict was rendered that "the deceased came to his death by an accidental discharge of a revolver while in his own hand."

The deceased leaves a wife and one child. He had an insurance policy of $20,000 on his life. At the time of his death he was Secretary of the Forest City, Varnish Company.—[Plaindeale].

A writer in the Manufacturer and Builder pertinently asks: "Why is it that there is such a repugnance on the part of parents to putting their sons to a trade?"

A skilled mechanic is an independent man. Go where he will his craft will bring him support. He need ask favors of none. He has, iterally, his fortune in his own hands. Yet foolish parents ambilious that their "sons foolish parents, ambitious that their "sons should rise in the world," as they say, are more willing that they should study for a pro-fession, with the chances of even moderate fession, with the chances of even moderate success heavily against them, or run the risk of spending their manhood in the ignoble task of retailing dry goods or of toiling laborrously at the accountant's desk, than learn a trade of retailing dry goods or of toiling laboriously at the accountant's desk, than learn a trade which would bring them maniy strength, health, and independence. In point of fact, the method they choose is the one least likely to achieve the advancement aimed at; for the supply of candidates for positions as "errand boys," dry goods clerks, and kindred occupations is notoriously overstocked, while, on the other hand, the demand for really skilled mechanics, of every description, is as notoriously beyond the supply. The crying need of this country to-day is for skilled labor; and that father who neglects to provide his son with a useful trade, and to see that he thoroughly masters it, does him a grievous wrong, and runs the risk of helping, by so much, to increase the stock of idle and dependent, if not vicious, members of society.

It is stated in the report of the Prison Association leads to the of courteen them.

ciation, lately issued, that of fourteen thou-sand five hundred and ninety-six prisoners confined in the penitentiaries of thirty States, thousand of the number, has never learned a trade. The fact conveys a lesson of profound interest to those who have in charge the training of boys, and girls too, for the active duties of life.

The Whitewater Register says John Straight, a farmer residing near that village, is the victim of a strange hallucination. Last week Friday he told his wife that he had received a call to go up forty miles above the earth and take charge of some nurseries or orchards there; said there were several orchards of just eleven acres each, and that he was the only man who knew just how to trim them and care for them; said he must go, and sure enough, that day he started. The family regarded it as a mere freak, and thought not much about it until evening, when, finding Mr. S. was unaccountably absent, they set out in search of him. They found no tidings of the missing man that night, but did find his the missing man that night, but did find his hat in one place, his overcoat in another, and his cost in another. Next morning, just as the slarm had become general, and a number of citizens were organizing to prosecute the search, Mr. S. came home of his own accord. He had been out all night, wandering about, probably in search of the ladder which should lead him up to the celestial gardens, failing to lead him up to the celestial gardens, failing to find which, he very sensibly concluded to go

A CATHOLIC journal is authority for the statement that not a Catholic woman on earth is in favor of woman suffrage. This is very probable. Catholics are generally opposed to all innovations, especially those tending to produce greater freedom of mind. The church has always been opposed to granting liberty to men, and it is not strange that it should oppose the enfranchisement of women.

A Loxpon medical journal reports a number of cures in East Indian hospitals by the application of petroleum in combination with other materials, to form a consistent ointment. Senator Wilson has introduced a bill calling for its suppression. Surely, enough without having the abomination of the slave trade thrown in.

THE leading financial men of New York who think that gold will continue to tumble to par, have intimated to the government that the sales of gold should cease, and it is understood that Secretary Boutwell will not interfere in any manner with the market. The prompt manner in which a resolution ordering the Secretary to sell gold now, in order to gain the existing premium, was voted down in the House on Tuesday, shows that the majority in Congress sympathize in this feeling.

THE Pope insists upon the endorsement of the proposition of infallibility by the Ecumenical Council, and a dispatch this morning says that the German and Austrian bishops have agreed to oppose that as well as other new dogmas. In the meantime, France has demanded special representatives in the Council, and it is understood that other Catholic powers will join with her. Another dispatch from Rome says the Pope temporizes, hoping to obtain a vote on the dogma of infallibility prior to the arrival of the French Commis-

GRENDY county, Iowa, possesses a man of great good sense in the person of a minister. We don't know his name. We wish we did, that the public might have a chance to honor him; but we are able to chronicle one of his actions. He has recently been preaching against the holding of festivals in places of public worship, hopping, skipping and kissing some pretty women, at a quarter each, to pay the minister's salary. Wouldn't one of our ministers create a sensation if he did the same thing? The consternation would be greater than when Christ drove the money-changers out of the temple.

M. OLLIVIER, the French Premier, made a remarkable speech at a political banquet a few nights since, which contained advice applicable, in some instances, in our own country. The sentiments, as condensed in a cable dispatch, were as follows: He urged all political parties to give the Ministry assistance and advice, and not keep aloof because of errors that have been or might be committed by the Ministry. He hoped the different parties would not be discouraged because mistakes had occurred, but would continue to point out improvements. He closed with the prediction that in spite of difficulties and accidents unforeseen, the Ministry would succeed.

Ir is stated that General Milroy, the Republican candidate for Treasurer, will publish a year from that game. card, shortly, giving his views upon the Wabash and Erie Canal question. He claims that he is in full harmony with the resolution of the platform adopted at the late Convention. and is opposed to the State's assuming any portion of the Canal bonds. He thinks it just and proper, however, if the bondholders will surrender their bonds so that they may be destroyed, to dissolve the trust and allow the bondholders to take the canal property and make what they can out of it. The canal has yielded no revenue for years, and doubtless never will, but has been kept up by private interests, in order that the freight tariff of the Wabash Valley Railroad might be kept in check. It is understood that the bondholders, if they could obtain absolute possession of the canal, could obtain two million dellars from the Railroad Company, in order to have it closed up and out of the way. As it now stands it is simply held in trust by the State for the bondholders, and nobody has the power to dispose of it. General Milroy is the present trustee of the canal on the part of the State. The bondholders have two trustees, Mr. Butler, of New York, author of the Butler bill, and Hon, Thomas Dowling, of Terre Haute.

THERE is a martyr in Washington. There is generally a martyr or two in Washington. But now there is a martyr whose martyrdom has been more fearful than usual. His name is Rodgers. Poor Rodgers, we pity him, we ache for him. He is a member of Congress from Arkansas. We fear he is a carpet bagger, but that makes no difference; he is a man, he has feelings to be wounded, convictions to be outraged. He spells his name with a "d" too, but we shall not withhold our sympathy for Delano to delay all collections against porkthat, Rodgers has suffered martyrdom at the hands of the female clerks of the treasury department. For obeying his conviction of cright he has been abused—shamefully malsented him, no rather forced upon him, four leather medals. They have metaphorically spit upon him, and all because he was opposed to them. He did not want to have them employed, and gave notice recently that he intended to bring in a bill abolishing female the least of the sentended to bring in a bill abolishing female to be the sentended to bring in a bill abolishing female to be the sentended to bring in a bill abolishing female to be the sentended to bring in a bill abolishing female to be the water are possessed in the sentended to be the sentended to bring in a bill abolishing female to be the sentended to be the clerks. At the Box Office. ...

She lived up town—a brown-stone case
Enclosed my jewel bright and fair;
And when I visited the place.
I ne'er could do a thing but stare
And let her talk—I could not speak
The slightest bit of news upon;
And thus stood matters one March week,
When Maggie Mitchell played Fanchon.

The raved of Maggie at great length,
Declared that she must go some nigh
So suddenly I mustered strength
This radiant being to invite.
And she accepted—whereupon
I very nearly yelled "Hurrah!"
I didn't know what I might have done,
But just then entered her mamma.

We stood within the corridor: I had just stepped inside the rail Toget my tickets, when I saw The state of matters, and turned pale. I'd dressed entirely new throughout Upon this jaunt with her to come;
I'd brought this heavenly creature out,
Leaving my pocket-book at home.

I stood there, vexed and mortified; Twas cruel as it was absurd;
Them did a little gloved hand glide
Straight into mine, without a word,
Leaving a dainty portmonnale
Of gold and pearl most quaintly made,
From which, scarce knowing what to say,
I for the evening's tickets paid.

When I sat down along with her"Fow don't look so annoyed," said she;
"Of course, mistakes sometimes occur,
And people lose their property." onfused, I answered, "I agree, But must feel vexed about it, though-What's yours does not belong to me." Said she, "Why shouldn't it be so?"

She spoke unthinkingly, then blushed.
"Oh, do you mean it?" straight I cried "Oh, do you mean it?" straight I cried My wild delight she would have hushed, A feeble "No" in vain she tried, But I'd not hear it, so at last— "Yes—just to keep you still," said she;
"There, there, don't hold my hand so fast—
The usher will be sure to see."

Oh. Maggic Mitchell, I must say, You never played as you played then, And she remarked the other day, That we must see Fanchon again. So, when you come, we shall be there. And you should hear her now aver, That I, to make our matters square, Must, on the next time, pay for her

"SCRAPS."

Parepa Rosa is only 31.

Texas is now producing fine tea. A scrip wedding is the latest novelty.

Boston has seven theaters in full blast. Drawing-room cookery-fashion plates. A cold snap-breaking off an acquaintance.

There are over twenty silk factories in Phildelphia. Eight of the United States Senators are natives of Ohio. Pullman's sleeping cars now run over 10,- 000,000 vards of railroad. Women are employed in seventy-four industrial pursuits in Boston. Covington, Kentucky, has a young lady who smokes six cigars a day.

Boston expects to pay $1,400,000 for its public schools the coming year.

Mr. Seward looks ten years younger than he did when he started on his tour. According to a London paper there are 100, 600 houses to let in the metropolis. The Cardiff giant has consented to go, as ballast probably, across the Atlantic.

A. T. Stewart is talked of as the next Republican candidate for Governor of New York. Every steamer between New York and Europe, carries several pickpockets and burglars. The Washington Star says Parepa's "plumptudinous figure" is greatly against her in sentimental parts. The champion corn-sheller of Illinois is a woman, who has shelled one hundred bushels in fifteen hours. Four hundred and fifty-two students have applied for admission to the Iowa State Agricultural College. The "queen of the panelers" in New York is city of New York were $821,918. Ten thousand and seventy-one buildings in New York are provided with fire-escapes, of which 9.343 were erected last year. Dr. Dio Lewis says that if people will eat late suppers (and they will,) they had better take beef, bread and a glass of water. Buffalo young folks have been indulging in masked sleighing parties. The masks were removed when they came to a bridge. Sanford and Sercomb, who killed two girls in Milwaukee with their explosive kerosene, confessed, and were let off with a fine of fifty The new Boston post office will be built of granite instead of marble, and to be finished in one year and not hang along for six, as was contemplated. St. Louis now measures fifteen miles from her northern to her southern limits. In annexing Carondelet its debt was assumed, which mounts to $230,000 According to a recent estimate, every fifth man above the age of twenty-one, who has died in Connecticut during the past forty years, was intemperate. It is estimated that there will be manufactured in the region of Pomeroy, on the Ohio and West Virginia sides of the river, 5,000,000 bushels of salt, during the present year. Collectors Weitzel and Pullan, of Cincinnati, have received instructions from Commissione packers, as manufacturers until December 1. A lady in Newark frightened off a burglat with a cologne bottle which she pointed at him, and which he took for a pistol and fled.

of the dance until we feel ourselves, not only elevated and electrified, but suddenly subdued as willing worshippers at the shrine of beauty and grace.

Mr. Poy, of the St. Louis Dispatch, now in Rome, in a private letter to a gentleman in St. Louis, gives it as his opinion that the Arch-bishop of St. Louis is the most learned and influential English speaking prelate in the Ecumenical Council.

"Gentleman of the jury," said a western lawyer, "I don't mean to insinuate that this man is a covetous person, but I will bet five to one if you should bait a steel strap with a new three cent piece, and place it within six inches of his mouth, you would eatch his soul."

T. N. Maxwell, of Memphis, killed himself in Macon, a few days ago, leaving the following note to his wife: "Dear Carrie-Have me buried by my mother. Good-by, darling; you are the only woman I ever loved. Die for

Dr. Strousberg, of Berlin, supplied 4,000 poor families with fuel enough to last through the winter immediately after the cold weather set in, and has opened four kitchens where soup and meat are given to all who come, at an average of 10,000 persons a day.

Salt Lake, in Utah, is seven feet higher than it was ten years ago, and is constantly rising, It has been urged by those who have paid attention to the subject, that the rise of water there would produce a solution of the Mormon question before Congress would act upon it.

The Deseret News of February 26 says the Mormon missionaries sent to preach in the Eastern States last fall, who have returned to Salt Lake, say that people East don't care to hear about religion, but invariably ask if there is any chance to make money in Utah

A wealthy farmer of St. Paris, Ohio, committed suicide on the 15th inst. No reason for the rash act is given; but a paper containing one of Mr. Greeley's confessions of "What I Know About Farming" was found tightly clasped in his right hand .- [N. Y. Commercial Conjunctions of the planets sometimes oc cur, and conjunctions of stars in the lecture firmament are not unusual. Such a phenomenon occurred in the good town of Mattoon on Monday night, Misses Dickinson and Anthony arriving simultaneously for the purpose of lecturing.

Don Pedro, of Brazil, paid an unusual compliment to the new British Minister on his recent arrival He not only invited him to din ner at the palace, but sent word that he would allow him half an hour for dining, the Emperor's rule, except on great occasions, being an invariable twenty minutes. A novel contest was to come off at the Cleveland West Side Rink. Eight men were to roll a barrel of flour twice around the rink the first one out to receive the barrrel as compensation, and the last being compelled to purchase a barrel and donate it to the West Side branch of the Industrial School.

This notice is printed at the bottom of the play bills at Booth's theater: "Spectators are requested to remain seated till the close of the play, as the noise made in departing by the impatient few mars the pleasure of the more intellectual persons in the audience, who wish to witness the completion of the performance."

New York Officeholders.

Setting conscience one side, who would not be a public servant in the city of New York? What more favored lot can be imagined? To be born with a gold spoon in your mouth is nothing to it. Take the case of William M. Tweed. There are men now living who have a faint recollection of a time when Mr. Tweed was rather poor than otherwise. But the sac-rifices which he has made for the public good have been rewarded. He has prospered in basket and store. To show how remarkably he has prospered, we quote a brief description of his stables:

"The doors are of massive black walnut, fit-ted with large panes of figured ground glass. The coach house is a handsome hall, sixty feet long by thirty wide. The walls are lined with black walnut. Robes of the silver fox and other animals hung from nails. Im-mense mirrors, beautiful clocks, bronze busts, a painted and grained ceiling, and, lastly splendid carriages and horses.

Hardness of Metals.

The hardness of metals may now be ascertained by aid of an instrument invented by a French engineer. It consists of a drill turned by a machine of certain and uniform strength. The instrument indicates the number of revolutions made by the drill. From this, compared with the length of bore-hole produced, the hardness of the metal is estimated. It is said that a great proportion of the rails now employed in France are now tested by this instrument.

Trade continues to be light in our general markets. The fine weather of to-day produced a more cheerful feeling among business men, but did not bring any material increase to their custom. The four and grain markets were inactive, and without nruch movement. The supplies of flour were abundant, excepting of the lower grades, but the demand was slight. Wheat was scarce, and the entire receipts were taken by the millers. Corn was active and in fair supply. Oats were plenty and dull. The business in country produce was slightly improved. Butter and eggs arrived more freely, and remained firm and unchanged. The grocery trade was only moderate. Buyers were investing very cautiously, and with reference to their immediate wants, on account of the unsettled state of the gold market. Oils were steady and firm at yesterday's reduction. Poultry was scarce, and full prices were asked and easily obtained. The provision market was dull and nominal. The jobbing trade reported few sales, but there is no demand for large lots Whisky declined 2c, but closed steady.

THE LITTLE SNOW-BOY.

BY MRS. S. C. HALL.

(CONCLUDED.) The snow had fallen as heavily and rapidly in London as in the country. When Joe got out at the street door the streets were nearly blocked up, the omnibuses did not run, the few cabs that appeared came out with all the dignity of a pair of horses; but the most re-markable thing of all was the intense silence markable thing of all was the intense silence of the immense city. Although Kensington is generally considered a quiet, dignified suburb, yet it has, in our opinion, a more than fair share of noise and bustle; but on the 2d of January it was as though we were stricken with a plague. The only sound in our villas was made by the rough voices of speculating navvies, who kept continually suggesting that we must have the snow cleared.— 'Clear your snow! clear your snow!'—terrifying the servants by information conveyed down the areas that if we did not 'clear our snow, we'd be had up and punnot clear our snow, we'd be had up and pun-ished,—worse than not sweeping chimneys regular it war,"

Boys crept about without shovels and brooms, but were kept in awe by the navvies, who monopolized the trade. Little Joe was somewhat perplexed, after his determination to go out as a "snow-boy," by the fact that he had neither shovel nor After a little consideration, heedless of After a little consideration, heedless of snow-drift or snow-shower, he took his way to the baker's, and entered the shop hopefully. "Drat those boys," said the baker's wife, "they neither give nor take rest! What do you want now?"

"Please, ma am, if I had a broom and a shovel I could earn something for my mother by clearing away snow."

never told a lie in my life; you might go to mother and ask her,"
"The baker lent the child what he requested; at five o'clock he had not returned.

"I told you so," said the baker's wife. "Yes, my dear; but as you did not believe what you said yourself, how could you expect me to believe you? The child has an honest face; has I am sure, been well brought up; and, moreover is very like poor Lyddy Boyd."

Boyd."
She was a fool," said the baker's wife.
"Because she married the man she loved? Did not you do the same?" Did not you do the same?"
"I did not marry a scamp," answered the baker's wife; and though she was dusting the counter with her apron, she looked proud-at her husband at the same time. "Here comes our little snow boy," said the baker, as Joe, weary and foot sore, but smiling, went past the window.

"Here's your shovel and broom," said the little fellow, "and many thanks, sir; and, please, I want a twopenny loaf, and here are the coppers—I made tenpence halfpenny; and at one house the lady, beside the money, gave me this tract, and a great bun."

"Which you ate?" said the baker's wife.
"O no!" he exclaimed; "I kept it for moth-'What is your mother's name?" inquired the baker.

"Mrs. Lloyd, sir,"
"Mrs. Lloyd?" he repeated. "Lyddy "I don't know, sir, as to the Lyddy; I nev-er heard her called anything but Mrs. Lloyd.

"It might be, sir; she has a brother, I know -Uncle Boyd." "Does he not take care of her?"

"No, sir; he's very hard sir, I know, to mother; and she prays so much for him, double to what she does for me. Good night, sir, and mistress!" He paused and then asked, "If it was to snow again to-night sir, would you please lend me them things again?"
"I'll tell you as we go along," answered the baker. "I shall go with you to see your mother."

Joe was very glad when the baker enclosed his solitary cold hand in his large warm one; and when the child said he must stop and inquire at the coal-shed about coal, his friend only lauged and astonished him by the rapidity and the magnitude of his purchases—hot soup and meat from a cookshop, tea, sugar, three large candles, and a hundred of coal, and all for Joe's mother! At last the child bosst into tears urst into tears.

"What is the matter now, little snow-boy? nquired the baker.
"Nothing sir; only mother will have all she wants without my help!"

"No, my child; it is all through you that she will receive this little help from an old friend. If you had not practiced self-help, and loved your mother, you would not have enlisted my sympathy and had my help."

"Mother was afraid of the snow," said little Joe, "but I told her it came for good."

"Did you ever hear this, little snow-boy," inquired the baker—"That all things work together for good to those who love the Lord?"

"Yes, sir: mother has said it, though she's Lord?"

"Yes, sir; mother has said it, though she's so dull at times. This is the house, but I think you are too broad across the shoulders to get up the top stairs." For an instant the haker doubted, and looked inquiringly at the child; could it be that he had made up a story about his mother? But Joe added, "You can get up sideways, sir, as the landlady does when she comes for the rent."

I think we all know by this time what a kind heart the baker had, and can believe that he felt very sad when he saw the once pretty and bright village girl a faded, wornout woman!

"Jae should not have brought you here, Mr.

cote," she said, drawing a the blanket around her. "I do not want to intrude my poverty on any one!"

"Mother!" interrupted Joe, "the gentlemen's rery kind, but we have money of our own, mother. I carned tenpence halfpenny as a snow-boy; did I not tell you the snow came for good?"

"God sends poverty as well as riches." observed her visitor, "and if we knew all, one is often as great a blessing as the other; your life fell among hard lines, but that will make you the happier, perhaps, by and by. At all events among all your trials (the baker laid his hand on Joe's head as he spoke), "he gave an angel to your bosom."

"That's true," said the widow; "but see how greatly even my poor child has been maimed and afflicted!

"Losing my arm!" exclaimed little Joe. "Why, mother, that's a blessing! Till have the one-armed boy for my door, said one lady, and she gave me two-pence; and when the other lads said they'd do it quicker, she repeated, "Slow and sure." A great big navy, who at first pushed me off the payement.

The other lads said they d do it quicker, she repeated, 'Slow and sure.' A great big navvy, who at first pushed me off the pavement, when he saw I had but one arm, putted me on the back till I shook again, and said I was a brave little man, and he would let me sweep where I liked; he spoke as if the street belonged to him. Mother, my half arm gets me smiles, and kind words, and friends; I was right about the snow, mother, I was right about the snow!"

It is wond rful what great good may be done by a l'itle thought, and a little time well

The kind baker found his way to Mr. Boyd's The kind baker found his way to Mr. Boyd's farm, and in a very few days afterwards the farmer's widowed sister and her little Joe were beneath the shelter of his roof. Mary's mother had been dead two years, and Mr. Boyd's sister is considered, even by Tom, to be a comfort in the house; and Joe, even now Joe can do with his one arm what Tom with his two, I am sorry to say, is never likely to accomplish; he can write his uncle's letters, and cast up his uncle's bills; and, what is better, he is bright and cheerful, and grateful. His uncle says the little "snow boy" could find strawberries in a bed of nettles!

Health of American Women

One of three things is certain. Either the American woman possesses a stronger consti-tution than she has the credit of possessing, or else all our ideas of protecting the body from the changes which belong to our va-riable climate, are, and always have been unnecessary, or it must follow that the present fashion of exposing the throat and chest to the sudden changes which belong to our climate must ere long, develope an unusual number of bronchial affections. But even if this is not the result of this hideous fashion, we should imagine that its indecency would we should imagine that its indecency would prevent all women who possess the least idea of moral or artistic beauty from conforming to it. Lack of modesty in dress is intolerable in all places and on all occasions—but apart from this fact, dressing one's self in a manner unsuited to the occasion, or to the place, is a mistake which no woman gifted with ordinary sense should make. Trailing a party dress through the dirt of a public thoroughfare would be no more ridiculous than is the corsage which is worn on the street, and which exposes the chest to the gaze of every passerby.

The Ohio Free Lovers

A correspondent of the New York World, after narrating the stirring events which characterized the early history of the free love settlement at Berlin Hights, Ohio, writes: The events narrated occurred eleven or twelve years ago. Since then the Berlin by clearing away snow."

"I thought the good gentleman here, who was so kind to me yesterday, might lend them to me. Mother and I had a beautiful tea last night—thank you, ma'am; but we have very little of anything for to-day."

The baker entered his shop before his wife had time to answer.

"A shovel and a broom, is it?" said the jolly baker. "And because I was kind to you yesterday, you expect me to be kind to you to-day?"

"Hope, sir, not quite expect."

"Hope, sir, not quite expect."

"Oh! oh!" said the baker, "chop's words, does it? And if I did lend taem, how do I know you would return them?"

"I would promise you, sir; mother knows I never told a lie in my life; you might—go to (about fifty men and as many more women) seem more devoted to secular pursuits than to a dissemination of their peculiar doctrines. Drawing a Crowd to a Ladies' Fair. The Albany papers chronicle the following shrewd practice on the part of the lady managers of the fair in that city: One morning—three days before the fair closed—one of the city papers contained a personal which read thus: "Dear George—My heart is breaking. Don't desert me. Come this evening to the fair on St. — street. You will find me at the — table. Lizzie." The advertisement the — table. Lizzie." The advertisement was, of course, read by those who are wont to look over the "personals," and the rendezvous in view was extensively spoken of by the patrons of the fair. In the evening, people clustered around the — table to witness the meeting between George and Lizzie, and to ascertain who they were. While waiting the coming of George, for whose sake Lizzie's coming of George, for whose sake Lizzie's heart was breaking, the eager crowd made liberal purchases at the table, and in a com-paratively short time the three misses had disposed of nearly their whole stock in trade. It is needless to say that Lizzie and George never met at the appointed place.

Her officers have their quarters in rooms such as are only found in the houses of the more opulent denizens of the shore. They dine oiled walnut tables, and sleep in state on patent spring mattresses. For genteel living, for entertaining visitors, and for drinking her gracious Majesty's health, her cabins can not

The following appears in the advertising columns of a morning cotemporary: "A lady of good address and business capabilities is open to an engagement on the first of April; is at present holding a position in a first-class gaining admission to those employments and businesses which were until very recently closed against them. But a comparatively short time will elapse before most retail establishments will secure their services as clerks. Elias Howe's invention has liberated thousands of sewing hands which are able to perform other work, and as the scale of women's wages approximate to something like just figures, we shall expect to find advertising departments regularly set apart in the papers for them. The impression is that it is not quite genteel for a female to stand behind the counter, and to perform numerous other labors hitherto executed by men, is rapidly wearing away, and with its disappearance ladies from the upper walks of life will rapidly find their way into clerkships.—[New York Commercial Advertiser.]

upon travelers which will are glad to see that the L are glad to see that the Legislature proposes to stop this peculiar swindle at its inception. These cars are built and run at private expense by private individuals; and the road managers are thus saved not only the cost of building and maintaining passenger trains, but are actually paid for the use of their rails. It is therefore to the interest of railroad companies to introduce as many "silver palace cars" as possible on their roads; and in order to force passengers to use them they keep their old cars in the worst possible condition of repair and comfort. They are, in many cases, mere rattletraps, cold, cheerless, and dangerous. The charge for riding in "silver palace cars" is illegal; the proprietors know it, and when a passenger refuses to pay for the privilege, they take good care not to turn him out. Travelers may aid in abolishing the tax by acting on this hint. We may have a return to the old cars, but the probabilities are that the existing rivalry of the great lines of railway will, in the end, result in the regular supply of these first-class cars at the legal charges.—[New York Tribune.

A Queer Case. The sudden disappearance of Mr. Henry Heimerle, at Hudson, New York, on the even-ing of his proposed marriage; has given that city a sensation. Mr. Heimerle, was a German tailor, about forty two years old, and a resident of Hudson for fifteen years. The preparations for his marriage were all made, the company assembled, and the bride expectant of the arrival of the groom. But no bride-groom came. The night passed, and all the next day, with no tidings of the missing man. At last his room was searched, and a note found stating that he had committed suicide, directing the finder to take possession of his property, and closing by saying that he did not want to make the girl unhappy. By this time a dispatch from Catskill reported that the missing man had shot himself in that village. This proved not to be the opening the missing man's trunk a govern-ment bond for $500 and $965 in cash were found. His watch, rings and entire wardrobe was found in his room. When last seen h

A Determined Woman. The St. Paul (Iowa) Press of the 1st has the following: "A lone woman passed through this city vesterday, with an ox team conveyance on her way to a homestead, seventeen miles above Alexandria, Douglas county. She had previously gone up and pre-empted a farm under the Homestead law, and built a house, and went back to near Red Wing for her aged mother. She found her mother sick, and after waiting several weeks for her recovery, it being necessary for her to return to look to her homestead, she started alone, with her household goods on a sled, hauled by an ox team, a cow being tied along-side. The woman, who is a Swede, did not appear to be at all appalled by the prospect of her many days journey to her lonely home."

The Secretary of the Navy has just reported to Congress a list of ten paymaster in the navy who are "indebted to the government" to the amount, in the aggregate, of $446,884, or to speak more plainly, are defaulters to that amount. Two of them owe the government more than $120,000 each, and the amounts set against the names of some others is very large. It is almost incredible that these men large. It is almost incredible that these men should have had a chance to get their fingers into the public treasury as deep as this, with-out being called to account; but there are a great many other wonderful things connected with the management of our navy, and we hope to live to see some of them changed.— Springfield Republican.
